County will take over and improve Sugar Bay ramp

At last Thursday's August meeting, the Gallatin County Fiscal Court agreed to take over and upgrade the public boat ramp area at Sugar Bay. The ramp is controlled by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The action will allow the county to add recreational features for boaters and fishermen at Sugar Bay.

The City of Warsaw and the Department of Fish and Wildlife recently joined on a similar project at the Craigs Creek launching ramp. That project has been quite popular.

"There are 13 acres (at Sugar Bay) and it has a lot of potential," Judge/executive Ken McFarland said after the meeting. "I hope we can put in a nice dock, some picnic tables, signage, lighting and make it a place people will want to use for all kinds of things. The river is our biggest asset. We need to take advantage of its beauty and what it has to offer."

McFarland said the Government Service Agency (GSA) is in process of transferring title of the ramp area from the Corps of Engineers to the county. Until that happens, the county will lease the area from the government at no cost.

In other Fiscal Court news:

•McFarland said the county may soon have an affordable high-speed Internet provider.

"I've been talking with city officials in Williamstown and they're working on a package for us," McFarland said. "It looks like they can use our water towers and put up one additional tower to make the Internet available to a vast majority of the county. They can't get every-one but we're hoping for at least 85-percent coverage."

•McFarland announced the section of RT 16 near Glencoe that has been closed for months would reopen in about two weeks. There have been numerous complaints the closure has made driving conditions dangerous for school buses and large trucks.

•There will soon be affordable bus service provided for the county's senior citizens.

•Bids were opened for several projects including repairing the dispatch center building, leasing the barn at the Glencoe park and sealing and striping the new parking area around the sheriff's office.

•Bids were also opened for paving Hillandale Road. Residents on the road will pay for that project to bring their road up to minimum county standards in hopes it will be adopted into the county road system.

•The court unanimously approved an update of the county's Solid Waste Management law. The update includes regulations for the storage, collection and removal of solid waste. It also stipulates that every home must be offered garbage collec-

City police don't want to merge

Mayor French says no decision has been made

Three Warsaw police officers appeared before Warsaw City Council Monday night to oppose giving control of the WPD to the county sheriff.

Pete Johnson spoke on behalf of fellow officers Brent Caldwell, Chief Donnie Gould, and the absent Robert Dunn. He delivered a detailed report about the WPD's cases this year to emphasize the city is getting good return on its police budget. He also complained about how the police learned about the potential move.

"I'd like to ask why you want to disband the department," said Johnson. "I didn't find out until I read the (Gallatin County News) last month. This is my career, this is my job, this is my livelihood."

"This is just something we're looking into, nothing's set in stone," Mayor French replied. "We're running the numbers and looking for ways to save money. As mayor, I have a right to look into ways to save money."

At July's council meeting, Mayor C.E. French said the city should consider an agreement with the sheriff's office to address the city's $195,000 budget deficit. Under the move, the police department would be disbanded and officers would become sheriff's deputies assigned to cover Warsaw. The cost for their salaries and insurance would become the responsibility of the county. The savings are estimated at $125,000.

In his report to council, Johnson said the WPD has had 58 cases this year and 36 have been "closed" — a ratio of 62 percent. He also said there have been nine burglaries, two violent assaults, $8,979 in recovered property, eight domestic violence calls, and 17 stops for speeding.

"I have to ask why we're getting this report now?" said French. "You're supposed to report to the people and we're the people too. If it takes a comment in the paper to get you boys fired up, this may have been a good thing."

In other Warsaw council business:

•Councilman Nelson Brown asked about $5,000 removed from the city's antenna rental account. Mayor French told him it was for a loan payment for the sewer renovation project and would be refunded by federal grant money.

"Aren't we supposed to get a budget amendment before we start moving money around?" Brown asked.

"Yes," replied French.

November elections shape up

Tuesday was the deadline for candidates to file to run for office in the November elections. There will be familiar names and some newcomers on the ballot.

Warsaw City Council

Eight candidates are running for a seat on Warsaw City Council. The include: incumbents Tyler Boaz, Nelson Brown, Randy Jones, Keith Jones, Jamie Gould and Jerry Hunt. Former council member Gary Thompson and Michael Finrock are also in the race.

Glencoe City Council

The race for Glencoe City Council is crowded with nine candidates vying for the six seats. They include incumbents Charlotte Adams, Leesa Nantz, Richard Dunaway, Mike Hampton, and JuJu Sullivan. Also hoping to join council are former mayor

Mike Murphy, former council member James Edmonson, Benny Edmondson, Teresa McPherson and Anthony West.

Sparta Commission

Dale Samuel, Bill Dunavent, Chad Dunavent and Bonnie Bond have filed to run for the Sparta City Commission.

School Board

There are three School Board seats up for election. Glencoe incumbent Alex Tainsh has no opposition. Napoleon/Concord incumbent Becky Burgett will face Chad Murray. Sparta incumbent Joanie Rogers is being challenged by Joseph "Dickie" Wilson.

Soil and Water

Incumbents Joe Smith, Ron Courtney, Peggy Tinch and Joe Lowe have filed to keep their seats as county soil and water conservation officers.

Other Races

Also on the ballot will be the elction for President of the United States, for the U. S. Congress and for the Kentucky House of Representatives.

Three candidates have filed paperwork in Kentucky to make them eligible to receive write-in votes for president. They are: Richard Duncan of Ohio, Louis Todd House of Kentucky and Barbara Prokopich of Washington. Their names don't appear on the ballots, however.

Ballots have spaces for write-in candidates but votes will only be counted for people who have filed to run as write-ins.

Democrat President Barack Obama and Republican challenger Mitt Romney will be added to the ballot after they are nominated at their party's national conventions.

It's time for a County Motto

Some people might want to make it "Gallatin County, Racing To The Future". That may be too controversial, since not everyone thinks our racetrack is a welcome addition.

Because we are located on the Ohio River, maybe our motto ought to be "Gallatin County, As Mighty As The River." But that, also, could bring problems. What if our neighboring counties decided it slighted them because it implied Gallatin County was mightier than they are? I would hate to upset the good people in Boone and Carroll counties.

Our former county judge, Clarence Davis, had a motto on his official stationery. It read: "Gallatin County, So Close To Heaven You Can Hear The Angels Sing."

That might be a good motto but I'm afraid the ACLU would take us to court for violating the separation of church and state edict of the U. S. Constitution. I'm sure County Attorney Spike Wright is way too busy to take on that battle.

Back in the late 1960s, when the Vietnam War divided our country, the right wing had a motto: "USA, Love It Or Leave It." That might work for us but I'm afraid if we told people "Gallatin County, Love It or Leave It" we might lose some of our neighbors that make this county so unique and wonderful.

After a motto is selected, we'll also need to pick a County Symbol. Last week, at our local grocery, I asked shoppers what they thought our symbol should be.

A lady picking up a cabbage chose the Markland Dam, a delivery man said a race car, and a girl with a bag full of jelly beans said The American Queen because the classic stern-wheeler looks so beautiful when she cruises by.

There are plenty of other things we need to decide upon before we can effectively promote ourselves.

I think the County Animal should be the white-tailed deer because there are so many of them, vegetable gardens may soon be endangered. Let's make the Great Blue Heron the County Bird because its name is fun to say. The County Dog could be the beagle because beagles are everyone's best friend.

Someone will also have to pick the County Landmark, the County Vegetable and the County Poem.

And while we're at it, why don't we get a County Song? Perhaps Bachman Turner Over Overdrive's "You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet" would do just fine.

Smoke and fire

Maria Shawartz and her children were left homeless, Monday night, after a fire broke out in their Meadow Creek Apartments home at about 8:30 p.m. in Warsaw. Fire Chief Barry Alexander said a pan of grease caught on fire and then spread through the kitchen when someone attempted to extinguish it with water. The fire was quickly brought under control and there were no injuries. Photo by Mark Baker

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

Can you believe it? We live in one of the fastest growing counties in the state and yet there are so many important things we don't have.

At the top of the list is a County Motto. You need a motto if you want to get ahead in this world. The money we use has a motto: "In God We Trust." New Hampshire has a motto, "Live Free or Die." Even the New York Times has a motto: "All The News That's Fit to Print". If Gallatin County wants to attract attention, it should have a motto, too.

Flag at Scenic Overlook should be respected

Dear Editor,

There's no question the renovated Ohio River Scenic Overlook at the intersection of U.S. 42 and U.S. 127 is a beautiful addition to our county.

All the many people and businesses who contributed to it should be thanked and congratulated for a job well done.

There's one aspect of it, however, I find troubling. The American flag at the overlook is being disrespected because it isn't illuminated at night. Federal law stipulates in the flag code that the flag should either be illuminated at night by an appropriate light source or taken down. There's a very dim light at the top of the flagpole but in no way does it illuminate the flag. The flag also appears neither to be raised up all the way or at half-staff.

Our flag is a very important symbol of this great country of ours. Men and women have fought and given their lives for it.

Our county leaders should do the right thing, abide by the federal law and make sure the flag at the overlook is treated with the greatest respect and reverence at all times.

Protect Kentucky's creeks from polluters

Dear Editor:

I read with great interest the letter from Dr. Dwight Wallace concerning the damage being done to Mill Creek in Owen County by Horseshoe Bend Motor Sports. This truly concerns me because my husband and I also own property that has creeks on it.

In past years, we have experienced individuals running in our creeks with four-wheel ATVs, cutting our fences, trespassing and destroying our property.

As you may know, all blue line creeks and streams are protected, not only in the state of Kentucky, but also by federal mandate. You cannot, in any way, desecrate, contaminate, change the course, erode the banks, or do damage to the flora/fauna. Nothing can be done to our natural streams/creeks with the exception of what "Mother nature" may do.

I've seen the photos Dr. Wallace has taken of what has happened to Mill Creek at the back of his property. I've also seen Horseshoe Bend's photos on Facebook.

I know that Dr. Wallace has filed a complaint regarding this activity to the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection Division of Water and Inspector Jeffrey Malsi has seen the damage first hand from Dr. Wallace's side of the creek.

I'm grateful for the opportunity to address this very serious problem and let those who have farms and are having this problem know you have legal recourse by reporting it to the Division of Water — either in Florence or Frankfort.

Often, we forget we share planet Earth with living creatures that cannot speak for themselves and depend on us to do the right thing.

I hope those who own property anywhere in the state of Kentucky find this information useful and, together, we can stop this senseless act of destruction that is happening to our creeks and streams.

Sincerely,
Katie Gibson

Baker gives credit to the Lord and McCord

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to Sharon Baker for her willingness to give credit where credit is due regarding her near-fatal accident we read about in last week's newspaper.

So many times, things are chocked up to being a coincidence when it is actually the hand of God.

I believe in divine intervention and a higher power. It's time for Christians to speak out and let their faith be known.

Thanks to Zachary McCord for his quick thinking and following the Lord's leadership.

Sincerely,
Mildred Johnson

Kentucky Commentary

Obama brings trouble for state Democrats

The relative absence of leading Democrats at last weekend's Fancy Farm Picnic reflected a growing uneasiness among them about their future in the Age of Obama.

That's the age in which we will find ourselves if the president is re-elected in November. Kentucky Democrats concede that his unpopularity in the state will cost them seats in the state House, and that could set them up for losing control of the chamber in 2014.

House Majority Leader Rocky Adkins of Sandy Hook said, "There's no question candidates in certain parts of the state are going to have to distance themselves from the president on certain issues."

The issues are several, but the main one for Adkins and many others is coal, which drives the politics of his home Eastern Kentucky and has considerable impact in the state's other coalfield in Western Kentucky.

Both are traditionally Democratic areas, but the Obama administration's efforts to limit water pollution from surface mining and air pollution from coal-fired power plants have given the industry and its political allies the ammunition needed to keep alleging a "war on coal" by Obama.

That resonates most in Central Appalachia where there has been a wave of coal mine layoffs that have been caused mainly by competition from cheap natural gas but probably, to some degree, by the industry's uncertain future. Industry experts blame the market. Coal field politicians blame Obama.

Some Democrats wonder if coal, in Kentucky political terms, is the new tobacco. But coal is not tobacco. It has strong critics in the state, including the coal fields and its political impact is not as broad as tobacco's was.

For some Kentuckians, though, the Obama factor is not only about issues. It's about his liberalism, his urbanity, his lack of attention to the state, and as demonstrated by 2008 exit polls, his race.

Obama has hurt Democrats in a swath of rural counties from Pennsylvania to Oklahoma, especially in Tennessee where, since 2008, Republicans have taken the governorship, both houses of the legislature and a majority of the congressional delegation, in large measure with anti-Obama campaigns.

Some Kentucky Democrats look south and tremble.

Adkins trumpets confidence about this year's state house races, saying Beshear is helping Democrats raise money, and the party will have "the most organized, the best coordinated, the best funded" campaign in his nine years as floor leader. He says the Obama label won't stick to candidates who are well-known figures, but Democrats still worry about 2014.

They will have to run in re-drawn districts, which will have voters who are new to them and reflect demographic trends that favor Republicans. Perhaps more important, U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell will be at the top of the ballot, and he could well be majority leader of the Senate, making him the top adversary for a re-elected Obama.

If no Democrat gives McConnell a true challenge, as appears likely, he could focus his re-election campaign on attacking the president and also put some of the tens of millions of dollars he will have at his command into a concerted effort to take over the state House.

That would complete his Republicanization of the state, perhaps the final feather in his political cap. If there is an Age of Obama, it may not apply to Kentucky. We're still in the age of McConnell.

Sheriff's Dept. to join effort to stop drunken drivers in county

The Gallatin County Sheriff's Department is joining with law enforcement throughout the nation for the "Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over" campaign, August 17 through September.

The strong nationwide impaired driving crackdown will include high-visibility enforcement, high-profile events, and will be supported by national paid advertising, creating a comprehensive campaign to curb alcohol-impaired driving in August and through the Labor Day holiday weekend.

The Gallatin County Sheriff's Department will be aggressively looking for impaired drivers during the crackdown and will arrest anyone caught driving impaired.

"On average, there is one alcohol impaired driving fatality every 51 minutes across America. But this tragic loss of life can be reduced if we get impaired drivers off our roadways," said Gallatin County Sheriff's Department Deputy Ryan Morris. "Research has shown that high visibility enforcement like the 'Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over' campaign reduces alcohol-impaired driving fatalities by as much as 20 percent. By joining this nationwide effort, we will make Gallatin County's roadways safer for everyone throughout the Labor Day period."

Last year, Kentucky recorded over 5,600 crashes related to drugs and alcohol, resulting in 150 deaths and over 3,000 injuries. During the labor Day holiday weekend, 13 people were killed and over 332 were injured on our roadways. Six of those deaths involved alcohol.

"Obviously, we want to remind everyone that it is illegal to drive impaired, and we hope the campaign will remind people that if they plan on drinking, to never get behind the wheel," said Sheriff Josh Neale. "But if someone does choose to drive impaired, we will arrest them. No warning. No excuses."

Violators face jail time, loss of driver licenses and steep financial consequences such as higher insurance rates, attorney fees, court costs, lost time at work and the potential loss of job. When family, friends and co-workers find out, violators also often face tremendous personal embarrassment.

"Driving impaired is simply not worth the risk. So don't take the chance. Remember, we will be out in force and we will be watching, so 'Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over' said Deputy Ryan Morris.

Glencoe wants all yards mowed

By Mike Dickerson
News Reporter

Run-down properties were the main topic at the Glencoe City Council meeting, Monday night. Council member Julia Proctor asked what's the next step now that owners have been notified to clean up their properties.

"It has been over 30 days since the letters were sent and still nothing has been done," Proctor said. "We (the city) need to be in court or we need to see angry property owners in this room."

Secretary-Treasurer Veronica Chapman said four letters were sent out along with a copy of the city's nuisance ordinance to owners of the neglected properties. No responses have been received. To continue the process, former mayor Michael Murphy advised Chapman to turn the matter over to County Attorney Spike Wright.

Murphy was criticized at the meeting over a similar issue. Mayor Jim Nantz asked why Murphy had mowed the Childs property after council voted last month to stop mowing it and sue to pay for mowing during the past two years.

Murphy said he was acting as an independent citizen and did the job to keep the property neat.

"Isn't the city suing for back taxes?" asked Murphy. "I just thought it needed to be mowed. What is the problem?"

"You can't just go and mow the property," said Nantz. "It's under litigation and you asked us to stop mowing to pursue the nuisance claim. There's no nuisance now because it's been mowed. You need to stop splitting hairs."

The city will proceed to place a lien on the property for the cost of mowing.

In other Glencoe business:

•County Fire Chief Barry Alexander addressed the council about renewing the solid waste plan for 2013-2017. He said the city has a universal ordinance in place mandating collection policies. The city needs to adopt a resolution to keep the plan in place.

•Plans for the Frontier Days festival are progressing well. Council member Rick Dunaway said the car show has a surplus of $900 after all trophies have been purchased. The figure does not include entry fees from participants.

•Council member JuJu Sullivan collected over $400 in fees for renting spaces to vendors at the 127 Yard Sale. The funds were distributed to the Frontier Days committee.

•One sealed bid was submitted and accepted for $1,007.58 to replace all metal doors in the city hall.

•Mike Murphy cited concerns about an unapproved sewer fee hike by Carrollton utilities. According to Murphy, the utility's rate board failed to notify the city of the rate change as is required.

"but this came up suddenly and I'll get amendments in the future."

Brown also questioned the city spending money to remove a fallen tree on High Street.

"I thought we had no money for trees," said Brown. "I just spent $600 out of my own pocket on the tree behind the Methodist Church."

He refused an offer of reimbursement from the Mayor and instead asked that sidewalks near the church be repaired.

•The city is seeking bids for paving work in the city. Among the streets being considered are Center Street from Lone Oak to Smith Avenue; sections of Stafford and Hackberry; Beechwood Circle; and First Street going down to the river.

•Tom Freeman of Pearl Street told council the overgrown tree at the post office "almost put my eye out". Mayor French said he was aware of the situation and the tree would soon be trimmed.

•Council approved a new six-year "Cross Connection Prevention Program" program to prevent people with cisterns from contaminating city water.

•Council approved a new Solid Waste Plan presented by Coordinator Barry Alexander. The agreement is renewed throughout the county every five years.

•Council met in Closed Session to discuss a personnel issue.

tion. Solid Waste Management coordinator Barry Alexander said about 85 percent of the county's homes are serviced by garbage collection companies.

•The county is currently negotiating with its insurance company to replace or repair the ambulance that was badly damaged in a recent fatal crash on U.S. 127.

Saying good-bye

The first day of school can be as hard on parents as it is on their children. Last Thursday morning, little Jenny Mahoney got a hug and a kiss from her mother, Mary Mahoney, before she began her first day in kindergarten. Photo by Kelley Warnick

People... in The News

Gallatin County High School students Sam Wright, Eli Ackermann, Courtney Partin, Nathan Messenger and Luke Ackermann were among the 1,073 outstanding Kentucky high school juniors who attended the Governor's Scholars Program for five weeks in June and July. A statewide selection committee chose the participants for the nationally recognized program from nominations submitted by each Kentucky school district. Selection criteria included academic records and test scores, teacher recommendations, extracurricular activities and essays.

Scholars spend five weeks on a college campus where they balance a busy academic schedule in the sciences, mathematics, humanities and the arts with a variety of co-curricular activities and a rich residential life. They also participated in community improvement projects, seminars and other activities often initiated by the students themselves.

Lt. Gov. Jerry Abramson visited two of the campuses this summer and remarked, "I was impressed by these bright young Kentuckians participating in the Governor's Scholar Program. They have distinguished themselves through hard work and dedication. I have the highest expectations for them and for the future of a Commonwealth in which they have become community leaders."

Sports in Kentucky

Top story from summer basketball circuit? Take your pick.

1. American men and women won gold medals at the Olympics in London.

2. Jabari Parker. A report this week said the nation's number one college prospect has narrowed his college list to three – Duke, Kansas and Michigan State.

3. Nerlens Noel is academically eligible to play at Kentucky.

4. Or, is it Kentucky's rise is the sports licensing industry?

According to internet site Bleacher Report, University of Kentucky deposited $6.73 million in merchandise royalties during fiscal year ending June 30. Near a 40 per cent increase from 2011.

In a $4.6 billion industry, Kentucky climbed from seventh to third place in revenue rankings behind only Texas and Alabama (football schools?).

5. The USA men's basketball team cruised to another gold medal and got the ultimate celebrity treatment doing it. Mike Krzyzewski would have it no other way.

Krzyzewski is becoming an American icon for success certainly, but more for humility, integrity and emphasis on what a college coach should be.

Here's what some of our friends and neighbors have been up to lately:

Shirley Chipman's Friday night guests were Mae Wallace, Lanette Morrison, and Gary and Kathy Stewart. Sunday dinner guests were Lanette and Jama Morrison, and Derina, Savannah, and Autaun Doolin.

Rae McEntyre continued her exploration of Kentucky historic sites by spending Saturday at General Butler

State Park. She hiked the numerous trails in the morning, then toured the Butler-Turpin house. The house contains numerous pieces of original furniture, and the guide provided tales of the hauntings purported to have taken place there. The brick federal-style residence was built in 1859, and contains eight large rooms and two wide halls.

On Saturday, they attended a going-away-to-college party for their granddaughter, Stacey Bennet. The celebration was held at the home of their son, John, who resides in Cincinnati. On Sunday, the Bennets attended a baby dedication party for their great grandson, Nolan Koehl, at the Cincinnati home of Mike and Lindsay Koehl.

Diane Young reports that she had a busy week getting ready and then participating in the 127 yard sale. She said they were amazed that they had people from nearly every state perusing their items. The Youngs enjoyed a visit from cousins Jon and Sandy Green, who helped with the yard sale, and stayed the entire week. Diane then spent some time relaxing and visiting with her mother and brother, enjoyed time with her grandson, Jared, and visited with her good friend, Lori Auton, and her cousin, Margie Hallett. On Sunday, Diane and husband, Ron, attended a going-away party for good friend, Carol McGowen's daughter, Kristine. Kristine is planning a trip to the Embassy in Iraq for a six-month tour.

Joanna Haymond enjoyed lunch at Jewell's on Main last Tuesday with a friend from Madison, with whom she taught music for many years. On Saturday, Joanna, Mary Jo Mylor, and Pat Deaton of Vevay had lunch together at Mo's in Vevay.

Delores and Terry Hopperton enjoyed the company of family members Brad, Jenny, Lila, Carter, and Maddie on Saturday. Kaleb and Josh Frontz spent Sunday afternoon with the Hopper-ton, and Mishelle and Kara Frontz dropped in after work. Delores said they didn't do anything special, but it was fun just being together and catching up.

I finally caught up with Betty and Boyd Lionberger. Hard to believe, but Betty said the only visitor she had this week was their grandson, Anthony West, seeking advice. She has been busy catching up with household chores, yard work, and canning tomatoes. She also told me she is now the proud owner of a nice Yamaha guitar that Boyd purchased for her at the 127 Yard Sale. For those who may not know, Betty is very musically talented and is able to master any instrument in a very short time.

Katie Lowe had a lovely day, last Tuesday, enjoying the company of some of her family members. Her cousin, Steve Fothergill, came up from Louisville, and granddaughter, C.J. Sadler, joined them on a trip to Vevay to visit more cousins. Steve kindly treated them, along with cousins Doug Ray and Jane Demaree, to lunch at Mo's. Following lunch they all went on to the Switzerland County Museum to spend the afternoon. On Saturday, Katie's husband, Hardin, visited patients at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Florence while Katie stayed home to can beans. Monday was Hardin's birthday, and the couple celebrated it with lunch at Red Lobster.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, HARDIN!

Thanks once again to my dear friend, Patsy Brown, and her nephew, C.J. Towles, who worked diligently again last week on my house and yard. Patsy has cleaned my rugs and couches, washed curtains and windows, cleaned floors, and has done so many other chores that I can no longer accomplish. C.J. has cleared the weeds, vines, and scrub trees from my yard, even during the extremely hot weather. Words are inadequate to properly express my appreciation to these wonderful friends.

PUPPY UPDATE: Little Annie is doing quite well and has adjusted nicely to my rather uneventful lifestyle. My only problem is leaving her alone to attend church functions, as she whimpers for an hour upon my return and needs to be cuddled - not that she is spoiled, mind you. She is learning to play "fetch" and has barked a few times, mostly at her stuffed toys which she drags all over the house and totally dominates. She is delightful, and brightens up my life.

Sullivans' 50th Anniversary Party

The children of Shupie and Dorothy Sullivan request the pleasure of your company as they celebrate the Sullivans' 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, August 19, from 2 to 5 p.m., at the Gallatin County Extension Office. (Casual attire preferred.)

The only gift we ask of you is your prayers for their continued good health and love for the next 50 years.

Tips for caring for aging parents

Many middle-aged adults are finding themselves caring and supporting two generations — their children and their aging parents.

While caregiving can be rewarding, it often can bring additional emotional, physical and financial stresses for caregivers as they try to balance a career, parenting and elder care.

According to the Family Caregiver Alliance, 520,000 Kentucky informal caregivers provide 570 million hours of care each year. The estimated value of this care is worth more than $5.4 billion. This support is most often geared toward seniors by middle-aged daughters who are balancing a full-time job on top of their other daily responsibilities.

Here are a few tips for handling the physical and emotional stresses related to caregiving:

- Recognize how you handle stress and what is stressing you. Put your stressors into perspective and make time for what is really important.
- Remember you also need to take care of yourself.
- Take physical and emotional breaks from caregiving, such as going for a walk or reading a book.
- Ask for help, including professional support.
- Remember that the example you set by handling your stress is a model for the rest of your family.

Reducing financial stress requires honesty between all parties involved in the caregiving process (your parents, your children and yourself). You should analyze your financial situation and be honest with your parents about how much financial support you can provide to them now and in the future. Your parents need to be honest with you about their monthly expenses. Reviewing your parents' expenses may help you find ways where they can cut costs, such as buying generic products, seeking government assistance or moving in together to share monthly expenses.

You should be honest with your children about the effects of caring for your aging parents and make sure they know their needs come first. You may also want to seek support and advice from geriatric care managers, elder care lawyers and financial planners.

Additional online resources for caregivers include AARP's web site www.aarp.org/ and Extension's Family Caregiving web site www.extension.org/family_caregiving.

Planting by the Signs

by Phil Case

If you're planting your fall garden by the phases of the moon and signs of the zodiac, here's the information for this week.

The moon is in the dark phase now and will remain there until the new moon – or no moon visible in the sky – on Friday at 11:55 a.m.

In last week's column I said the moon change was on Thursday. My apologies for that mistake – I had the right date, but the wrong day!

It shouldn't really make any difference on which day the moon changes anyway since both Thursday and Friday are under the rule of the killing sing Leo (the heart). These are just no-plant days!

But if you're planting today (Wednesday), make it below-ground producers from the list. And according to the signs, it's a great day with Cancer (the breast) in control, one of the four most fertile signs.

Now that we know we can plant below-ground producers today (Cancer and nothing Thursday or Friday (Leo), let's move on with the rest of this period and the moon firmly in the light phase on Saturday.

Beginning Saturday and continuing through Tuesday, Aug. 21 we find a four-day stretch of flowering signs. Saturday and Sunday are ruled by Virgo (the bowels), followed by Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 20-21 ruled by Libra (the reins). These are great days to put out your fall flowers because they are "bloom days."

Outstanding planting for any above-ground producers from the list below in the unprotected garden is on tap for next Wednesday through Friday, Aug. 22-24. The moon, of course, is in the light phase and the sign all three days is in Scorpio (the secrets), one of the four most fertile signs.

What to still plant

From "Home Vegetable Gardening in Kentucky," here's how long you can continue to plant these veggies in the unprotected garden:

I realize "mid-August" passes today or Thursday, but if you're so inclined – and given this year's weather – I'd say you'll be safe planting these for another week or so.

Until mid-August: beets, bush beans, rutabaga.

Through August: Bibb lettuce, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, Chinese cabbage, collards, endive, kale, kohlrabi, mustard greens, snow peas, turnips, turnip greens.

Through September: leaf lettuce, radishes, spinach.

In the protected garden, planting and harvest can go on for some time to come. You can use polyethylene row covers to extend the harvest of frost-sensitive crops such as tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers.

The row cover traps heat and protects the plants from killing frosts but beware that on warm, sunny days the row cover must be ventilated to protect plants from excess heat.

Department of Agriculture will present new displays at the 108th Kentucky State Fair

Visitors to the 108th Kentucky State Fair will notice a new appearance to the Kentucky Department of Agriculture's exhibits in the Kentucky Exposition Center's West Wing and an interactive computer display in the South Wing.

"The Kentucky State Fair gives the Kentucky Department of Agriculture an opportunity to show the public some of the things we do for every Kentuckian every day," Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said. "I hope all Kentuckians will come out Aug. 16-26 and enjoy some farm-fresh food from our Kentucky Proud producers."

The South Wing will feature an area where Commissioner Comer, as his schedule permits, will greet fairgoers and answer questions about agriculture in the Commonwealth. This is his first state fair since he was elected agriculture commissioner last November.

The new KDA display in the West Wing looks like the side of a barn with a fence around it. Kentucky Proud vendors will give product demonstrations and offer samples of their foods.

In the South Wing, laptop computers will be set up to quiz fairgoers on agriculture-related questions. Each day, representatives from a different agritourism venue will meet the public to promote their farm or bed and breakfast.

Kentucky commodity organizations will sell representative samples of their products at The Great Kentucky Cook Out Tent. The Kentucky Proud farmers' market will be back at its usual location outside the corner of the West Hall.

Staff from the Department's Division of Show and Fair Promotion will help work the livestock shows at the fair. Department employees will work the skillathons and judging contests. Staff from the Office of the State Veterinarian will check health papers for every animal that's brought to the fair.

Ask Doctor Dirt...

By David Hull

Dear Doctor Dirt,

I've always loved Sycamore trees. But everybody tells me that they make lousy shade trees for the yard. Is this true? Thanks.

G.H.
Verona

Dear G.H.,

I like Sycamores too; I think the tree's peeling bark and strong branching lines make it unmatched in the winter landscape. But it does have its share of problems. It's very prone to leaf diseases; during times of drought, the tree drops many of its leaves; and frankly, it doesn't grow old very gracefully. It gets dead branches which fall off, leaving jagged nubs which many times allow rot to enter the main trunk.

I know, I know, this sounds like a deal-breaker on having a Sycamore in your yard. Well, cheer up there G.H., cause I've got the solution for you. There is another tree, closely related to the American Sycamore, which makes a much better landscape tree. It's called the London Planetree.

The London Planetree (Platanus x acerifolia) looks almost exactly like the common Sycamore. It grows pretty quickly, has fewer disease problems, and is longer lived than its American cousin. I actually have three London Planetrees in my yard and they're doing great!

Interestingly (at least to me), the Sycamore is mentioned in the Bible as the tree little Zacchaeus scampered up to get a better look at Jesus. Here's the horticulturally interesting part; the Sycamore written about in the Bible is not the Sycamore that we think of. What folks in biblical times called Sycamore was actually a type of fig tree. Now, don't you feel smarter?

Public dove fields added in southeast region of Kentucky

Dove hunters in southeastern Kentucky now have six additional public dove fields to enjoy this fall. Dove season opens statewide on September 1.

"We had these fields come in a little late to make the deadline for the dove hunting guide," said Rocky Pritchert, migratory bird coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "They will provide additional opportunity for our hunters."

These fields are open to public hunting September 1, September 3 and from September 8 through October 24. One of these fields in Lincoln County is closed September 1 for a Mentor/Youth hunt.

Hunters interested in reserving a space for Mentor/Youth hunts must register by calling the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources at 1-800-858-1549 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Eastern time. Limited spaces are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. Registration is open through August 27, or whenever all the slots are filled.

The additional public fields are located in Lincoln, Wayne, Pulaski and Whitley counties. The two fields in Wayne County lie beside one another, so the driving directions are identical.

Directions to the fields:

Lincoln County:

From Stanford, take

U.S. 27 north for 0.16 mile to a left on to KY 590. Travel about 1.5 miles and turn left on a gravel lane and proceed to marked field and parking area. Closed Sept. 1 for Mentor/Youth Hunt; call 1-800-858-1549 for reservations.

Lincoln County:

From Stanford, take U.S. 150 southeast for 6 miles. After crossing Cedar Creek Lake dam, turn left onto Sportsman's Lane for 0.3 mile to the parking area at Cedar Creek Sportsman's Club.

Pulaski County:

From Somerset, take KY 80 west for 15.6 miles and take a right onto Hickory Nut Road. Travel Hickory Nut Road for 6 miles to field on right.

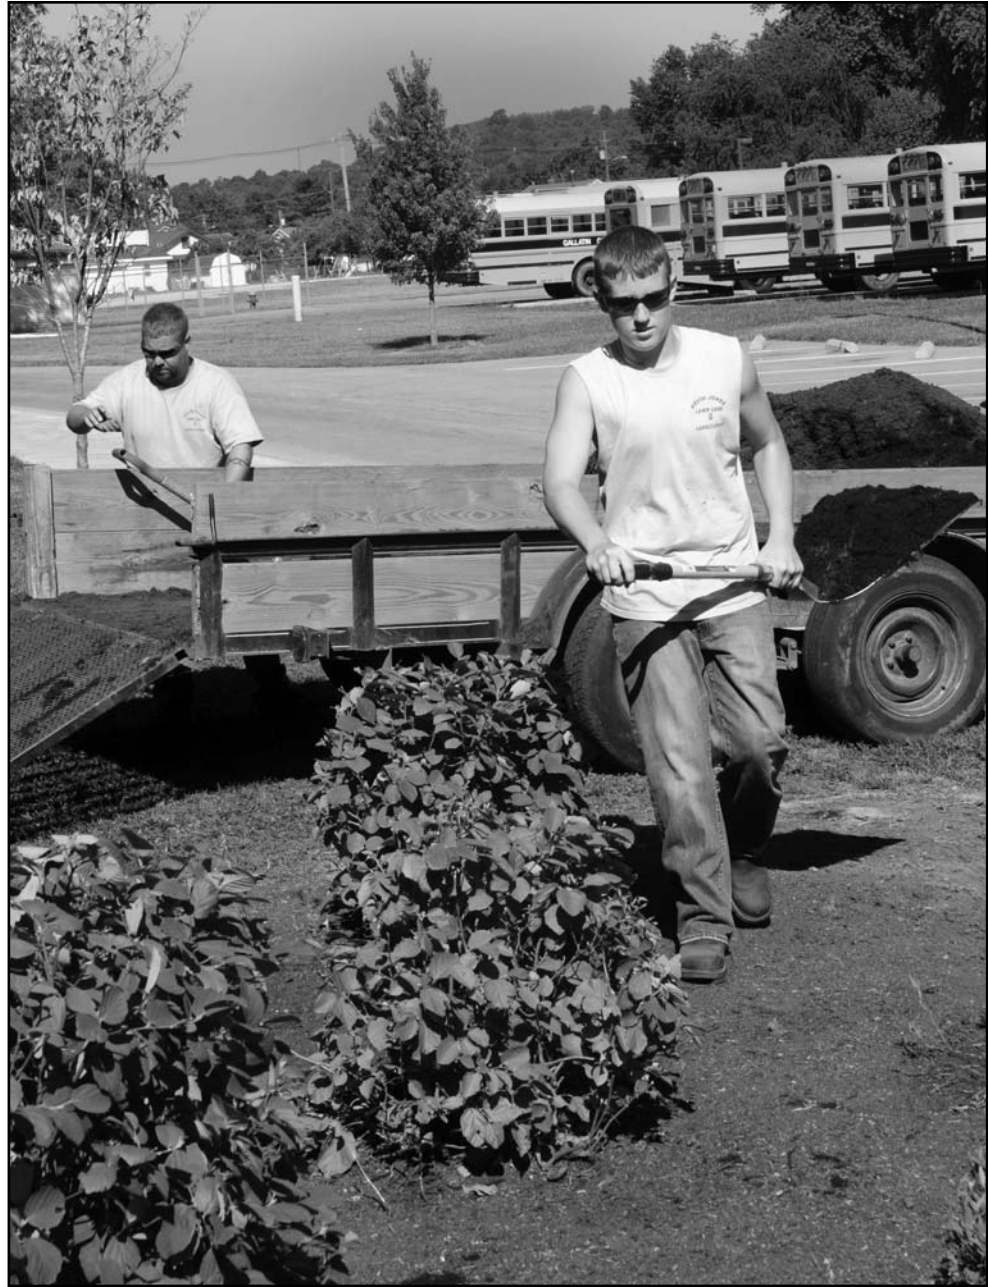

Wayne County:

Two fields located beside each other:

From Burnside, proceed west on KY 90 for 1.4 miles to a left onto KY 790. Travel for 10.8 miles and take a left onto Brammer Hill - Delta Road. Proceed 2.4 miles to a left onto Brammer Hill Ridge Road for 1.8 miles to field and parking area.

Whitley County:

From exit 25 of I-75 in Corbin, proceed west on U.S. 25 W for 5.9 miles and turn right onto Frankfort School Road. Go about 0.13 mile and take a right onto Ernest Alsip Road for 0.17 mile to field and marked parking area.
